THE SISTERS RETURN

THE KIDNAPING PLANS.

Were After the Young Street

abducted the two Wilson girls last week, was brought to this city from Evansville by detective Kinney yesterday. The woman throws the blame for the affair on Osborn, former manager of the Nickelodeon Theater, who is in jail, charged with kidnaping. She says that Osborn represented to her that the Board of Children's Guardians was making an effort to get control of the children, and that he asked her to take them away from the city, in order that they might not fall into the hands of the board. She disclaims having had any evil intentions towards the children. The little girls, Arizona and Rosa, say that the woman induced them to go with her by stating that they would fall into the custody of the board. This was pictured to them as an awful thing, and they readily consented to accompany her. Quinette confirms the story of their wanderings as detailed in the Journal yesterday morning, with a single exception. Instead of leaving this city for Kokomo last Saturday they went to Noblesville by a circuitous route. A man (whose name Quinette affects not to know) drove them part of the way, and they took the train at a way station, arriving at Noblesville on the early evening train from Indianapolis. From there they went to Sheridan, walking part of the way and riding the remaining few miles with a farmer. On the next stage of their journey the woman and girls walked five miles, from Terhune to Kirkland, where they caught the train for Frankfort. By the aid of free transportation furnished by township trustees they got as far as Vincennes, where Quinette says she pawned a gold watch belonging to Mrs. Butterworth for $5 and bought tickets to Evansville. She claims that at Evansville she grew alarmed, for fear she might get in trouble over the little girls, and that she went to the station house to get advice, when she was arrested. Mamie Quinette gave the name of Mary Wallace, said that she was an actress by ville, Tenn. Two or three weeks ago, she says, she read an advertisement in a dramatic paper inserted by Osborn, manager of the Nickelodeon Theater, and that she came here and was given an engagement. As the stage of the Nickelodeon was too small for her to give performances in her regular line (she is an acrobat and trapeze performer) she contracted to do a turn at singing and dancing. Osborn, she says, came to her the night that the Wilson children first turned up at the relice son children first turned up at the police station and inquired if she knew them. She informed him that she did. She says that she promised him to look after them if they were engaged for the following week.

"Monk" Wilson then went out to look for the girls, but returned and told her that they had left the station house and were "mountebanking." The next night, Friday, after the show, Osborn asked her to look after the girls until morning. She went with them to Mrs. Butterworth's house, and the next morning took them to the them. the next morning took them to the theater, expecting to meet the boy Joe there. It was then, she says, that Osborn first spoke about getting the children out of town. The girls are rather pretty and are very bright, although they seem neglected and careworn. They were delighted to get back here, and looked forward to meeting their brother Joe with great delight. "I wish my mamma was here," said the younger one. The children both declare that Mr. and Mrs. Wilson, who are at Danville, are their parents and that Joe is their brother. Before taking them away Quinette asserted that the man and woman at Danville were not the children's parents, and that Joe was not related to them.

At the request of the little girls an offi-cer was sent to the Nickelodeon. He told Joe Wilson that his sisters were at the station house. IN THE COURTS.

Robbed of Her Husband's Love. Leonora G. Riley brought suit yesterday against John H. and Eliza Riley for allenating the affections of her husband, Harry F. Riley. She was married to the latter in February, 1892, and says she lived happily with him until the defendants maliciously set about by artifices and fraud to rob her of his love and esteem. She avers that by threats to disinherit her husband the defendants finally induced him to separate from her in February, 1896. By reason of this separation, the plaintiff avers, she has been greatly injured, and demands damages in the sum of $10,000.

John Dugan, a farmer living south of the city, sued the Big Four Railroad Company for damages for the loss of two horses killed by one of the defendant's locomotives. Cincinnati were the only Western cities to have this lecturer, for she is one of the luxuries of the lecture field.

A Falling Off in Enumeration. Ex-Township Assessor Wolf says the school enumeration will fall from 5,000 to ported last year. The last enumeration showed 39,000 school children. Under the new system there is to be no padding of lists which will give the township schools a larger share in the school fund. Under the old law, it is said, padding was encouraged in the cities. As a result the city schools get money from the fund that otherwise would have gone to the out townships. Mr. Wolf will have the enumeration complete in

Rev. R. V. Hunter Will Preach. Rev. R. V. Hunter, of Terre Haute, formerly pastor of the Seventh Presbyterian Church, will preach to his old congregation this morning at 10:30 o'clock, and again to-night at 7:30. Dr. Hunter still holds a warm place in the hearts of the members of the Seventh Church, and it is anticipated that large audiences will be in attendance street at a speed of fully twenty miles an hour. Luckily the trolley pole broke and the conductor and motorman got the brakes set in time to prevent any serious damage. This One Took Atropia.

A Runaway Street Car. The motor of a Brightwood car broke yes- New well

Dr. Boaz, of the City Dispensary, was called to resuscitate Lenora Stewart, of 260 West Washington street, at 7 o'clock last night. Dr. Boaz found the young woman in the last stages of poisoning by atropia. By using the stomach pump and administering powerful stimulants her life was saved. The girl told Dr. Boaz that she was tired of life and wanted to end her troubles by death. The vial which contained the poison was not labeled, and the doctor had to judge by the symptoms what drug had been taken. The girl said she obtained the drug from "Pearl," one of her friends," who lived in another house in that neighborhood.

"You have some very valuable property, believe?" said the tall man, carelessly. The little man looked at him sharply. "That depends," he said. "On whether you want to buy it or assess
